The Caucus.
Special to DAILY BULLETIN.

FRANKFORT, Jan. 17, 1884.—The caucus last night adjourned after three ballots had been taken. There was no change in the result, and no indication of a break in the ranks of any of the candidates.

The small pox is said to be increasing at Louisville.

The total value of property in Kentucky, owned by colored people, is $3,350,400.

A CREMATION SOCIETY has been organized at Cincinnati and a crematory is to be built at an early day.

The St. Louis iron works are all closed or running on half time; the glass works are closed, and there is great depression in all classes of building.

CINCINNATI is moving to secure the National Democratic Convention. A committee has been appointed to visit Washington in that interest.

For the year 1883 the State paid $196,918 for criminal prosecutions, and since October 11, 1883, has paid $5,276,340 for the same purpose.

A PROPOSITION will come before the Legislature to form a new county out of parts of Breathitt, Perry, Clay and Leslie Counties, the county seat to be Crooksville.

MILES HALL, now in jail in Owingville, Ky., for marrying and deserting Everett Cassidy, is only nineteen, and already has enough wives living in different parts of the country to last four men a lifetime.

PRESSURE is being brought upon the President to secure the appointment of David Wagner, formerly Chief Justice of the Missouri Supreme Court, to the vacant seat in the U. S. Circuit Court, caused by the resignation of Judge McCrary.

An experienced Government official says the proposition of Representative Follett to pay pensions through the Treasury Department means that another bureau, with five hundred clerks, will have to be established. The Follett proposal will be recommended by the House Committee on Appropriations.

This western glassware manufacturers have adopted a novel method of overcomes that striking end yes. The factories have been closed for some months, the men having refused to accept reduced wages, but they will continue to receive orders from customers, forwarding them to eastern manufacturers to fill. The eastern glass makers will sell their wares to their allies in the west at the lowest possible rates, allowing the latter a good margin for profit. It remains to be seen whether there is sufficient identity of interest and purpose between the eastern and western employes to defeat the above ingenious plan.

ODD ENDS.

Picked up in Odd Places.

Burke, of Atlanta, Ga., still hangs Confederate notes. He pays half a cent for all bills below $1,000, and for that denomination he pays 25 cents. He sells them to Northerners as curiosities.

A new word, "collectivism," has become current among socialists. It is used to mean all that is embodied in the phrase "collective investigation of disease," an idea which is attracting the earnest attention of English and German, and who are especially carried on in the United States.

The enormous annual loss of life in India by snake bites, amounting to nearly 20,000 persons, continues in spite of the wholesale destruction of these venomous creatures. The rewards paid by the Government of India are so large to show that there were killed during last year, throughout India, 322,421, of which 262,384 were found in the Bombay Presidency alone. The rewards are gradually removed from town and city limits, and their vicinity, also, crevices, or thorn hedges, ruined houses and walls and the like, which harbor and afford cover to those reptiles.

During a visit to the great needle manufacturer, Kremer, last year, Emperor William, on examining a bunch of superfine needles, expressed his amazement that eyes could be drilled in such minute objects. He turned upon the foreman and said, "Keep your emperor's beard, instantly bored an eye in it, threaded it and handed it back to the astonished monarch. Queen Victoria possesses a needle on which scenes from her life are depicted, so minute that it requires a magnifying glass to distinguish them. Both of these curiosities will be displayed at the International Exhibition of Needlework, at Sydenham, next July.

The ground of the Northwest London Cemetery, which is every way kept by an enterprising parkward, who officiated as his own chaplain, and buried 20,000 persons, "laid with their heads to the west, shoulder to shoulder, and head to foot, placed directly opposite each other." The subsoil having done its duty, the worthy spectator tarred the surfaces, levelled the ground, and invited building tenders. Of course, subsidence of the ground was soon evident, and the new inhabitants receive soon very decided impressions of their ancestors. The tendency is said to be "fully alive to the situation, but there is no law to meet the case,

THE BLACK CROOK.

Interesting Features of the Lives of the Girls of the Ballet.

Domesticity Among the Stage Fairies.
—Characteristics of the Dancers
—Told and Insist Incident to Their Existence.

[Chicago News.]

Not the least interesting feature of "Kingly Crook" is the series of young women who make up the ballet of that company. These girls collectively and individually are a study. Their number includes young girls, plump girls, old girls, and girls whose ages range from 12 to 18 years; girls; plump girls, bony girls, and scrawny girls; tall girls and short girls; beautiful girls; handsome girls, pretty girls, plain girls, and ugly girls; girls with good figures, and girls with bad figures; girls fearless, bold, and brave; girls modest, timid, and shy girls. In fact, as ever to think for themselves, and circumstances, also, to think for others, through the crowd, but stand up like little warriors between want and privation and whose families of relatives.

NOT HOLD NO BAD.

The matinée of Saturday is such that a very short apprenticeship will suffice to wear off shyness or extreme sensitiveness of persons to stop the chinkling of the bracelet and the eyes of the girls, and will, I hope, the blush of indignation rise above the crimson rouge on her face, her defiant lips will quiver with anger, and she will resent the taunts and scoffs quickly and effectually as though she were the reigning belle of an upper-ball room.

EVERY YEAR

[Albert Cook.]
The spring has less of brightness,
Every year;
The sun is a pale, whitened,
Every year;
How the summer flowers quicker,
More suddenly than thick,
As they grow old, for we sicken
Every year.

It is growing darker, colder,
Every year;
As the bell-trees gradual grow older,
Every year;
Pours not now for dancing,
Or eyes with passion glancing,
Love's own, the heart entrancing,
Every year.

Of the love and sorrows blended,
Every year;
Of ties of friendship ended,
Every year;
Or the ties that still might bind me,
Until Time to death resigned me,
My friends and me,
Every year.

Oh, how sad to look before me,
Every year;
While the clouds grow darker o'er me,
When we see the blossoms faded,
Thus to bloom we might have added,
And then the garlands braided,
Every year.

To the past go more dead faces,
Every year;
None no new ones in their places,
Every year;

You can win no new affection,
You have only recollection,
Despair now and detection,
Every year.

Thank God! No clouds are shifting,
Every year;
Over the land to which we're drifting,
Every year;
No loves or friends have given us,
Nor loving faces leave us,
Nor death of friends bereave us,
Every year.

Connected with the Yule-Log, the Mistletoe and the Holly.

The Luck of Christmas Candies—
Bad Luck at a Christmas Eve
Supper—Omens of Good and ill.

[Harper's Bazaar.]

From the remotest times of the bursting of the Yule or Christmas log, it has had all kinds of superstitions connected with it. In recent years the log must be of a service kind to us, as it would provide us with a state of fatigue of such grand, terrible, and an extra glass from the cedar barrel is expected by the guest for every crack made by the blazing fagots. One log is the general custom, but we have known of cases collected for that purpose, when water was inaccessible. A bit of the Christmas log must always be saved to light next year's Christmas fire with. This is done, as the first does not go off during the night, until Christmas day at sundown. In many homes music is played during the ceremony of lighting the fire, but on no account must it be lighted before the proper time, which is at sunset, Christmas Eve. The candles and candles should be lit soon after, but for good luck the light must be taken from the Christmas fire. It is very bad luck to extinguish them, and then to start the unbroken in the house, as it is to tempt you to cut them before the proper time. Never refuse to take or give food and shelter at Christmas time.

One of the most distinct customs in the decorating of our homes and churches with evergreens at Christmas time, to our forefathers believed that the decoration of private dwellings by the hanging of the ornaments of the divinity would, by marking the houses of the believers, preserve them from the intrusions and evil auspices of demons.

It is regarded as very unlucky circumstances if any one hangs up evergreens or remains behind on the removal of the church or home decorations, and all must be cleared away before Candlemas-day (February 2) and on no account should the sacred mistletoe be taken down, as it is a symbol of strength and easy attraction, with consequences of necessity of harm—be cast into the street or carelessly thrown aside, for love luck it must be thrown by the oldest unmarried member of the family, the male being excluded.

If one wishes to renew an old Roman custom, let him send a holly branch to his friends as typical of good wishes, and it may have a charm. By adding a sprig of mistletoe, the blessing will be doubled. As a message of hope, for if the holly carries good wishes and foresight or forethought, the mistletoe is an assurance of "surmount difficulties." If a wife has been won by this little token of the male, she may be safe.

It is very lucky for a child to be born on Christmas day, especially if the day falls on a Sunday. And the girl wins a bribe or the 25th of December is said to have nothing to fear.

At no other time is a black cat—a strange black cat—I thought to be lucky but at Christmas. If one comes into the house, it is a sign of good luck.

No person but the boys must presume to get out doors on Christmas morning until the threshold has been consecrated by the incoming footstep of a man.

Do not think me short talking [quarrel] on Christmas day or night; who's liable to friendship, love, or "budd," and an old colored mammy; and be sure you wish some one a "Merry Christmas" before you pass the door, and do not say "Good-bye"; and for real good luck kiss the oldest person in the house first on Christmas morning, and the youngest on New Year's morning.

A taste of fashion in Paris, because the apron to me means a great deal, I purchased half that from city and nearly all have bibs. Some are made entirely of black lace, others are nearly all, especially red velvet. Half of them are made of lace, and others are composed entirely of the petits points spotted lace, which is studied all over with tiniest pos-petals. The ordinary size of the fashionable aprons of to-day is three quarters square, but closely gathered at the waist,
